Resolve Claims Through FACTS (Reality) Rather Than Expert Opinion

Expert opinions regularly contradict one another. This nonsense can be eliminated by ignoring opinions, and focusing on reality.

Learning objectives include:

- Reality-based methods (e.g., from the AMA Guides Library) make opinions unnecessary for determinations of:
 - Work-relatedness
 - Restrictions
 - Disability
- These premises have failed scientific scrutiny:
 - The premise that injury causes chronic pain
 - The premise that "concussion" causes persistent impairment
- The premise that civilian adult life events cause mental illness (e.g., "PTSD").
- Reality-based outcome predictors can protect claimants from harmful health care (e.g., spinal cord stimulation, surgery for chronic pain).
